Britain Orders Japs from Isle

SHANGHAI, May 17—Admiral Sir Percy Noble, British Far Eastern naval chief, delivered an "ultimatum" to Japanese authorities today, demanding evacuation of Kulangsu island, international settlement at the Port of Amoy.

Kulangsu island was occupied last week by Japanese blue-jackets. Yesterday Japanese Consul General Goro Uchida rejected a protest filed by the Kulangsu municipal council against its seizure.

The "ultimatum" delivered by Sir Percy demanded that the Japanese forces leave Kulangsu within 48 hours. Otherwise, it warned, the British would land a large military force there.

The United States, British and French consuls at Amoy yesterday filed protests with the Japanese consul general in Shanghai against the Kulangsu occupation.

The British destroyers Duncan and Defender arrived off Kulangsu, augmenting the British cruiser Birmingham, the destroyer Scout and two United States warships, the cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Bulmer. A French destroyer also is en route to Kulangsu.

The United States cruiser Marblehead and four British warships are due to arrive shortly at Amoy. The United States destroyer Bulmer is there already.

HONG KONG, May 17—Japanese authorities have withdrawn some of the naval forces which occupied Kulangsu island, it was reported in Hong Kong today.

The Kulangsu municipal council, the advice added, rejected all but one of the Japanese demands.

Senate Leader Says Culp Act to Win Approval

COLUMBUS, May 17 — Vigorous denials of a break between Governor Bricker and Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr over legislation came from both camps today as Senate Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore declared that a bill of Rep. Cyril Culp (R-Toledo) outlawing legal graft would pass the senate.

The governor tossed aside reports that his administration was at odds with the state committee mogul with the statement that he had no objections to the bill being amended if the teeth were not extracted.

Schorr also denied that there was any ill-feeling between Republican headquarters and the governor by branding reports of a break as "pure bunk" and adding that he would have a memorandum of his objections to the bill ready sometime today.

Schorr Authors Letters

Reports of a "break" were circulated after several Republican senators received letters from Schorr in which he said that he believed the bill was "poorly drawn" and recommended that action on the bill be postponed until he could prepare his objections to it.

Meanwhile, Governor Bricker was vehement in his contention that there was no "break" in relations with Schorr.

HAZARD MINING OPERATORS FOR U. M. W. A. PEACE

HARLAN, Ky., May 17—Capitulation to union demands by the Hazard Coal Operators' association was claimed today by the United Mine workers as "shoot to kill" orders, effective as a last resort to maintain order, were issued to 900 National Guardsmen protecting the reopening of strike-closed mines in Harlan county.

There was no indication that Harlan mine operators planned to give in to the union, however, although signing of the Hazard group would leave the local owners alone in Kentucky in opposition to the U. M. W.

Announcement that the Hazard operators were prepared to sign contracts was made by Sam Caddy, president of U. M. W. district 30. The union leader had been conferring with the Hazard officials almost continuously for 12 hours when he emerged from the meeting at Lexington early this morning and declared:

"I expect the Hazard operators will sign contracts with us this morning."

The Harlan operators object to what they call the "closed shop" contracts demanded by U. M. W. Chief John L. Lewis, and according to Association President George S. Ward, they will persist in refusing to agree to such contracts.

Germans Hail Report of Scandinavians As Blow To Roosevelt

BERLIN, May 17—Hailed by Germany as a "rebutte to President Roosevelt," Sweden, Finland and Norway today termed "superfluous" a non-aggression pact with Nazi Germany while Denmark agreed to negotiate such an agreement immediately.

Action of the four Scandinavian nations was in reply to a proposal by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, who had hoped to create a neutral block to his North, but if the refusal of Sweden, Finland and Norway was a disappointment to the Fuehrer, the government gave no indication of it.

Official circles interpreted their action as further proof of President Roosevelt's "folly" in asking Germany and Italy for twenty-five years of guaranteed peace.

HOLLYWOOD, May 17 — A horse is a horse and anyone who owns one can call the animal "Silver" if the name is suitable. A federal judge held this opinion, in effect, today after he had dismissed the $250,000 suit Buck Jones, screen cowboy, had brought against Republic pictures because the film company allegedly appropriated his famous "Hi Yo Silver" yell in a series of horse operas. Judge Harry Hollzer ruled Jones had no cause for action.

Text of King's Talk

QUEBEC, Que., May 17—Following is the text of King George's address at the Dominion government luncheon today:

"Mr. Prime Minister: "I am deeply moved by your words of welcome to the Queen and myself on behalf of the Canadian people."

"I recognize that this moment is historic. It is the first time that a British King has crossed the Atlantic. I stand today on the soil of North America. Here, in the past two centuries, through loss and through gain, the British commonwealth of nations has been largely moulded into its present form."

"This is also the first visit of the sovereign to one of his overseas dominions, it is fitting that it should be to the senior dominion of the crown. "You, in Canada, have already

QUEBEC CHEERS KING, QUEEN ON HISTORIC TOUR

PERILOUS TRIP AT END

George, Wife First Royal Couple To Touch Soil Of America

QUEBEC, Que., May 17 — The green hills of Quebec, fair as an English countryside, formidable as a Gibraltar, welcomed the rulers of the British Empire today.

Completing an arduous and even perilous crossing of the Atlantic, King George and Queen Elizabeth stepped on the warf at historic Wolfe's cove at 9:35 a. m. (Circleville time) first reigning monarchs of the British empire ever to set foot on Canadian soil.

From the citadel high above on the cliff boomed the 21 gun salute of Canada's welcome. From the brown path winding up the cliffside—the path Wolfe took to storm Quebec—cheers echoed and reechoed from the throats of spectators.

On the warf itself plumed government officers, red jacketed Canadian mounties, blue jackets of Canada's naval reserve made an unforgettable picture against the blue water of the St. Lawrence river, the green cliffs of the city.

The King wore the uniform of an admiral. The Queen was attired in a grey dress, grey fox neckpiece, grey hat. Both smiled their appreciation of the welcome of their overseas subjects.

Far Behind Schedule

The royal rulers appeared in the best of spirits and health despite their vexatious crossing which brought them to Quebec two days behind schedule, after running through heavy fog and drifting ice fields.

At the platform where a temporary throne had been erected for them the King and Queen received Prime Minister Mackenzie King of the Dominion government, members of the cabinet, Lieutenant Governor and Madame Patenaude and officers of the legislature.

The reception lasted less than 10 minutes, the long line of distinguished persons filing quickly past their majesties to curtsy to the Queen and receive a warm handshake from the King.

The prime minister and Minister of Justice La Pointe had previously gone aboard the Empress and been received in the ships drawing-room by the King.

After the short reception, with onlookers suddenly hushed, the King and Queen left their thrones, to ride in Canadian-built automobiles to the legislative building for an official reception.

POND DRAINING FAILS TO HELP MURDER INQUIRY

Chemist's Finding Not Yet

Draining of the small pond just west of the city in the river lowlands, Tuesday afternoon, failed to reveal any clues in the investigation of the murder last Sunday of Noble Crawford, 39, of Haynes, Hocking county. Authorities were seeking a pocketbook reported to belong to the dead man.

Crawford's body, containing 13 stab wounds, was found in the pond Sunday afternoon where it had been placed after he was murdered. The absence of water in the lungs showed that Crawford was dead before being placed in the pond.

The pond was drained by employees of the city. A ditch was dug to remove the water. Patrolman Carl Radcliff, officer in charge of the draining went over every inch of the mud bottom with his hands in the hope of finding something that might shed some light on the murder. Workmen started ditching at the pond short-

SHANGHAI, May 17—Admiral Sir Percy Noble, British Far warned, the British would land a large military force there.

The United States, British and French consuls at Amoy yesterday

Announcement that the Hazard operators were prepared to sign contracts was made by Sam Caddy, president of U. M. W. district 30. The union leader had been conferring with the Hazard officials almost continuously for 12 hours when he emerged from the meeting at Lexington early this morning and declared:

"I expect the Hazard operators will sign contracts with us this morning."

The Harlan operators object to what they call the "closed shop" contracts demanded by U. M. W.
Chief John L. Lewis, and according to Association President George S. Ward, they will persist in refusing to agree to such contracts.

BRIDAL PARTY IN AUTO CRASH; MOTORIST SUED

An accident on Route 22, between Circleville and Lancaster, last Feb. 25, resulted in a damage action for $10,000 being filed Tuesday in Franklin county Common Pleas court.

Robert M. Kolb, 373 Desher avenue, Columbus, was sued by Mrs. Vivian B. Schafer, 789 Dennison avenue, Columbus. Mrs.
Schafer says she and her husband were accompanying Kolb and his fiancee to Circleville to be married when the accident happened.
She contends Kolb was driving at a high rate of speed and did not take into consideration the icy pavement.

PERILOUS TRIP AT END

George, Wife First Royal
Couple To Touch Soil
Of America

QUEBEC, Que., May 17 — The green hills of Quebec, fair as an English countryside, formidable as a Gibraltar, welcomed the rulers of the British Empire
today.

Completing an arduous and even perilous crossing of the Atlantic, King George and Queen Elizabeth stepped on the warf at historic Wolfe's cove at 9:35
a. m. (Circleville time) first reigning monarchs of the British empire ever to set foot on Canadian soil.

From the citadel high above on the cliff boomed the 21 gun salute of Canada's welcome.
From the brown path winding up the cliffside—the path Wolfe took to storm Quebec—cheers echoed and reached from the throats of spectators.

On the warf itself plumed government officers, red jacketed Canadian mounies, blue jackets of Canada's naval reserve made an unforgettable picture against the blue water of the St. Lawrence river, the green cliffs of the city.

The King wore the uniform of an admiral. The Queen was attired in a grey dress, grey fox neckpiece, grey hat. Both smiled their appreciation of the welcome of their overseas subjects.

Far Behind Schedule

The royal rulers appeared in the best of spirits and health despite their vexatious crossing which brought them to Quebec two days behind schedule, after running through heavy fog and drifting ice fields.

At the platform where a temporary throne had been erected for them the King and Queen received Prime Minister Mackenzie King of the Dominion government, members of the cabinet, Lieutenant Governor and Madame Patenaude and officers of the legislature.

The reception lasted less than 10 minutes, the long line of distinguished persons filing quickly past their majesties to curtsy to the Queen and receive a warm handclasp from the King.

The prime minister and Minister of Justice La Pointe had previously gone aboard the Empress and been received in the ships drawing-room by the King.

After the short reception, with onlookers suddenly hushed, the King and Queen left their thrones, to ride in Canadian-built automobiles to the legislative building for an official reception.

Germans Hail Report Of

BERLIN, May 17—Hailed by Germany as a "rebuke to Presi-and Norway today termed "superfluous" a non-aggression pact with Nazi Germany while Denmark agreed to negotiate such an agreement immediately.

Action of the four Scandina-proposal by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, who had hoped to create a neutral block to his North, but if the refusal of Sweden, Finland and Norway was a disappointment to the Fuehrer, the government gave no indication of it.

Official circles interpreted their action as further proof of Presi-

Germany and Italy for twenty-five years of guaranteed peace.

HOLLYWOOD, May 17 — A horse is a horse and anyone who owns one can call the animal "Silver" if the name is suitable.
A federal judge held this opinion, in effect, today after he had dismissed the $250,000 suit Buck Jones, screen cowboy, had brought against Republic pictures because the film company allegedly appropriated his famous "Hi Yo Silver" yell in a series of horse operas. Judge Harry Hollzer ruled Jones had no cause for action.

Text of King's Talk

QUEBEC, Que., May 17—Following is the text of King George's address at the Dominion government luncheon
today:

"Mr. Prime Minister:
"I am deeply moved by your words of welcome to the Queen and myself on behalf of the Canadian people.

"I recognize that this moment is historic. It is the first time that a British King has crossed the Atlantic. I stand today on the soil of North America.
Here, in the past two centuries,
through loss and through gain, the British commonwealth of nations has been largely moulded into its present form.

"This is also the first visit of the sovereign to one of his overseas dominions, it is fitting that it should be to the senior dominion of the crown.

"You, in Canada, have already fulfilled part of the Biblical promise and obtained dominion from sea to sea. You are now engaged in consolidating government from the river to the ends of the earth, from the Saint Lawrence to the Arctic snows.

"The Queen and I are looking forward, with anticipation too great for expression, to seeing all we possibly can of this vast country. Particularly do we welcome the opportunity of greeting the men and women who are its strength and stay, and of seeing something of the younger generation so soon to become the guardians of its future.

"I am particularly pleased that, on the day of my arrival in Canada, I should have the pleasure of meeting, not only my ministers, but all the members of my privy council for Canada."

QUEBEC CHEERS KING, QUEEN ON HISTORIC TOUR

Bright Colors Of Mounted Police, Naval Reserves, Officials Predominate

off the island through the night and early morning, there was no excitement among the peasants, few of whom ever have left their primitive land even to visit Quebec city a few miles across the St. Lawrence.

All during the night, soldiers and police and visitors poured into the old city which, like all Canada, never before has been visited by a reigning king. Every train from Eastern Canada and from New England brought new arrivals. The big show attracted even Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who checked in from Washington.

Narrow, crooked alleys of the lower city which King George and his queen will not even see, were gay with bunting hung at considerable sacrifice by poor millworkers whose "vive le Roi" is a fervent as the "God Save the King" of any other British subject.

Quebec, where the British Lion is almost as curious an object as would be the American eagle, made its mistakes and occasionally hung its Union Jacks upside down but there was no mistaking the sincerity of the French-Catholic community's enthusiasm for its English-Protestant rulers.

Even the Papal Zouaves, historic Catholic lay regiment with a history which traces back directly to the Vatican, buttoned themselves into their uniforms (which tradition says were designed by Michael Angelo who also designed the uniforms for the Vatican Swiss guard) to participate in the celebration.

Bright Colors Prevail

Colorful uniforms were everywhere. Northwest Mounties in red coats, the Royal 22nd regiment, garrisoned at the citadel and, as French as any French army regiment, but clad in British scarlet with fur busby, Quebec police duplicates of London bobbies, Montreal police with snappy caps and silver trimmings, troopers of a green sort in a dozen sort of uniforms, generals and colonels and ministers and nobles of the crown, all providing a colorful pageant new and strange to the new world.

ver, the G-men's chief, and A. Bernard Leckie, head of the Philadelphia F. B. I. office were asked to search included, first, Mrs. Rose Carina, grim "kiss of death woman" and Lorelei of the syndicate. She is suspected of luring at least four men to their deaths.

Second is Dominic Rodia, accused as an accessory in the drowning of Joseph Arena, a Philadelphia, near Sea Isle City, N. J., in 1932.

Meanwhile, possibility was seen that still another federal agency—the postoffice department—would be brought into the investigation which now is operating on a triple front of G-men, detective and district attorney's office maneuvers.

Postal officials in Washington were believed interested in evidence that the "slay-for-profit" ringleaders conducted a matrimonial agency as a sort of side line to the main business of inducing women to poison their husbands so the victims' life insurance policies could be collected.

Postoffice operatives were said to be ready to act if it can be shown that the mails were used either to inveigle prospective husbands into the fatal spider's net of alleged "black widows" or to obtain fraudulent insurance.

"And, I believe, that if the people in different countries could sing together, we would have fewer wars."

Prison Inmates Relate Convict Banker's Acts

COLUMBUS, May 17—Following testimony that a Cleveland banker assertedly entertained a woman while an inmate of Ohio penitentiary, more guards and convicts were slated to take the stand today in the civil service hearing of James C. Woodard, ousted warden.

Assistant Attorney General Harry Hanna indicated he would follow the previous line of questioning, endeavoring to bring out that whisky and narcotics were smuggled into the prison and that guards, during Woodard's regime, received little instruction in the use of firearms.

A flurry of sensationalism was injected into yesterday afternoon's session when Chancey Felton, a convict serving a second degree murder term, testified that C. Stirling Smith, former Cleveland banker convicted of embezzlement, had met a woman while a trusty.

Felton asserted that Smith, on New Year's Eve in 1937, entertained a woman in the prison pumpmouise located across the street from the institution. Both Felton and Smith were employed in the pumpmouise.

"I had to call a guard captain to get the woman out of the place after Smith had gone off duty," Felton testified. "I never saw Smith or the woman after that night."

Whisky Seen
Asked if he ever saw Smith have whisky or take a drink, Felton replied "he had whisky a couple of times and I saw him take a few drinks but he was never intoxicated to my knowledge."

On cross examination, Felton admitted Smith was punished for the infractions.

Henry Barnes, Columbus, a prison guard in 1936, told the commission that while he was stationed in the southwest guard tower he often saw "Smith walking with a woman along a dead-end street near the Scioto river."

These incidents, Barnes said, were reported to Woodard. Several weeks after reporting what he saw, Barnes said he was transferred to another tower.

A profitable liquor business was explained by Wayne Holden, serving a robbery term.

Under close examination by Hanna, Holden said, that as an electrician and trusty, he had occasion to leave the penitentiary several times a day.

"Many times," he said, "I drove a truck down town and bought whisky at a state liquor store under an assumed name."

"How much did you pay for the whisky," Hanna asked.

"About 75 cents or 87 cents a pint," the witness countered.

"How much did you sell it for in prison?"

"About three dollars a pint."

Smuggled To Pen
Holden said he was able to smuggle the whisky into prison because incoming prisoners were not searched after 2:30 p. m.

The witness, under cross examination by Woodard's counsel, W. S. Pearle, denied that he had been promised he would not be punished if he told about his whisky dealings.

Questioned about firearm training they received during Woodard's regime, guards Arnett J. Buzzard and Ernest R. Johnson, both of Columbus, said that in the Spring of 1935 they were given a "short" course in the use of pistols and rifles.

Johnson also related that many men he sent to deputy warden's office for disciplinary purposes came back "in 15 or 20 minutes and apparently nothing had happened to them."

legislature; I have not tried to dictate to or influence any legislators."

He said, however, that Whittemore felt a $10,000 fine for conspiracy to defraud the state was too high and "not commensurate with the crime as it is set up in the law."

"I know no reason why the chairman (Schorr) shouldn't be interested in this legislation," Bricker said. "His position doesn't neutralize or take away his rights as a citizen."

Still For Passage

"I still want the anti-graft bill to pass. It was mentioned many, many times in the platform and in my speech to the legislature."

Don C. Power, the governor's secretary, said that Schorr told him he was not opposed to the bill in principle.

The governor added that "there is not so much importance attached to this bill, and it is 'merely a move to get a good bill passed and see that the platform is carried out.'"

The Culp bill was amended in the house to include political subdivisions in conspiracies against the state and give the attorney general the power to call grand jury investigations of alleged violations.

The senate judiciary committee amended the measure to provide that counties pay grand jury costs.

Remarking that "the bill will be passed," the governor added: "I don't want to see the time when hot mix scandals and other graft is allowed to flourish with nobody but the county prosecutor cognizant."

He referred to his stand that the county prosecutor and the attorney general should have equal jurisdiction in the prosecution of cases where the state is defrauded.

The senate approved the newest Bricker ripper legislation which would allow the governor to appoint a new public institutional building authority and raise the maximum issuance of bonds from $7,500,000 to $10,000,000.

Investment Permitted

The bill was amended to allow the state sinking fund to invest in the bonds.

With very little debate the senate concurred in amendments to the house-approved bill authorizing cities to levy not in excess of one and one-half mills by a majority vote in 1939 and a 55 percent vote in 1940 for poor relief matching purposes.

One of the major pieces of legislation of the administration's relief program, the measure went to the governor for his signature.

Charging that wholesale dismissals of classified civil service employees have recently been effected by the State Unemployment Compensation bureau, Rep. Harry Dworkin (R-Cuyahoga) offered a resolution in the house calling for the appointment of three house members to investigate practices of the bureau.

One of the most controversial measures of the present session was slated for a vote in the senate today when the bill of Rep. Lawrence Kellar (R-Delaware) to outlaw nudism in Ohio reaches the upper house.

The house of representatives approved the bill after it was bitterly fought by nudist organizations in committee.

Shoving aside a bill to add a third member to the civil service commission, the senate judiciary committee recommended for passage a substitute measure setting

F. D. R. TO SIGN BIG FARM BILL DESPITE GARNER

Wallace Victory Expected Although Vice President Opposes Measure

SUBSIDIES ARE PROVIDED

No Provision Arranged For Obtaining Fund Needed For Payments

WASHINGTON, May 17—Intimates of President Roosevelt said today he has indicated he will sign the $1,219,000,000 farm bill, with its huge subsidies for American farmers, if congress enacts it.

This decision, if carried out, will constitute a major victory for Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace in his long feud with Vice President Garner over farm relief.

The President was pictured as ready to sign the bill even though it fails to carry provisions for raising revenue to meet a $400,000,000 increase over budget estimates for agricultural relief.

The feud between Wallace and Garner is long-standing. Wallace has fought to obtain funds for parity payments and soil conservation outlays to farmers. Garner has battled just as vigorously against such payments, personally favoring a cost of production guarantee to farmers on that portion of their crops consumed in the domestic market. The President hothotly has sat aloof, as an umpire, but intimates now say he is willing to go along with Wallace.

The issue was threatened out at the last cabinet session, with Garner urging the Presidential approval.

Independence Menaced

In urging a veto, Garner reiterated his arguments against using federal funds to pay farmers for doing nothing and to pay fictitious prices for farm products. He repeated earlier charges the Wallace program will destroy the initiative and independence of American farmers.

Asked to respond to the Garner complaint, Wallace told the President he had a choice of three alternatives. First, Wallace said, the President can adopt a subsidy plan, such as is written into the pending farm bill. Second, he added, the President could attempt to fix farm prices, but warned this would be a venture into the Fascist theory of government.

Third, Wallace concluded, the President could let the farmers shift for themselves.

Friends of the President say he will go along with Wallace's program, because he opposes the alternatives. Some observers, however, believe the President is looking forward to 1940, in view of the farm revolt against the New Deal in 1938 elections.

Fiscal Year Covered

The Wallace program would cover the fiscal year from July 1 to next June 30. The pending bill, with its $1,219,000,000 total, is just $457,000,000 more than is being spent on agriculture during the current fiscal year. The new program includes $500,000,000 for soil conservation and crop control payments, $225,000,000 for parity payments, and another $203,000,000 to handle crop surpluses. It is the most expensive farm program ever laid before congress.

PETTENGILL "The Gentleman from Indiana"

ENGLAND TOOK THE DIAMONDS

In his message to Hitler and Mussolini the President made two thoroughly sound proposals. One dealt with the crushing burden of armament; the other with "the most practical manner of opening up avenues of international trade to the end that every nation of the earth may be enabled to buy and sell on equal terms in the world market."

This is good seed. It is a genuine tragedy that a year ago a half of international name calling prepared such stony ground for its reception. Nevertheless it seems clear that the President himself recognizes that Germany has a case to present to the public opinion of the world.

That case is wholly separate from German atrocities, purges, or the totalitarian form of its government. If France were fascist and Germany a republic the case would exist just the same. The atrocities only obscure it, make it more difficult of treatment. They neither prove nor refute the case itself.

Mr. Hitler says, "We must export or die." By that he means that Germany must be able to exchange her manufactured goods for necessary raw materials or perish.

It is time to understand an important new word—ersatz. It is not something to laugh at. Ersatz is the expedient of desperate people. It is a substitute for the real thing—artificial rubber, synthetic food, chemical fats, soft steel, test tube cotton, motor fuel from coal, cloth from milk curds. Germany has been living on short rations since 1914—a quarter of a century. Travellers tell me that guests in a German home bring their own butter, that it is not considered polite to eat your host's butter—there is so little of it. Multiply that in a thousand different directions.

Boundaries are so fluid nowadays that the map makers have to get out morning and afternoon editions. But it is a close guess that Germany, including Austria and Czechoslovakia, now has 85,000,000 people. Her area is now about 263,000 square miles. This is almost exactly the size of Texas. Italy—in Europe has 43,000,000 people living on 120,000 square miles, which is slightly less than the size of New Mexico.

We have almost exactly the same number of people as Germany and Italy living on 3,000,000 square miles, not including Alaska and our insular possessions.

Let us ask ourselves an honest question. How would we like it if some tragic fate compelled our 128,000,000 people to leave Pittsburgh, Hartford, Los Angeles, Toledo and millions of towns and cities and farmsteads in 46 states and crowd ourselves into Texas and New Mexico and live on the natural resources of those two states? I am certain I know the answer. We would not like it. The next question is—would we stand for it? I think not, judging from the way we took it from the Indians and Mexicans. So why should we walk by on the other side?

Turn the map to Africa. You may be surprised as I was to learn that England has a colonial empire in Africa alone bigger than the United States, including Alaska, Philippines, Hawaii, Canal Zone, Puerto Rico and Yap. France also has a colonial empire in Africa alone bigger than England's with Texas thrown in twice to boot. Belgium has a colonial empire in Africa as big as our 15 southern states. Portugal has an African empire bigger than 3 times Texas. Spain's Africa is as large as Montana.

Well, you may say that African real estate is not so hot, or too hot. Granted. But with the development of modern medicine, sanitation, air conditioning, who knows but that a large part of the Dark Continent may become the comfortable home of millions of white Europeans. Those same things made our own Panama Canal Zone as healthy, if not more so, than the city you live in.

Anyway Africa was good enough for Germany's neighbors. Cecil Rhodes found the richest diamond and gold mines in the whole world in the Boer Republic. What happened? England took the diamonds. She did so in as brutal a war as a big nation ever fought against a little one. Our sympathies were with Oom Paul and the Boers. Who was the aggressor then? British Imperialism we called it in 1900.

Germany hasn't a square inch of Africa, nor an ounce of its gold, diamonds, rubber, petroleum, or pygmies. Germany does not have a square inch of land anywhere in the world she can call her own outside of Europe. And there live 85,000,000 people!

Germany is short of land, water, power, petroleum, iron, copper, lead, gold, aluminum, clays, tin, nickel, chromite, tungsten, mercury, phosphate, sulphur, timber, rubber, wheat, coffee, cotton, wool. Of several of the above she has none whatever.

She had colonies in Africa. She won them by settlement and negotiation not by conquest. Where are they now? England and France took them at Versailles. Why not return them and save a world war?

"Interrogating them about it, said, 'The whole family of us are leftlanders.' Yes, this is that, 'something different,' and news."

Commander J. C. Kenworthy and the crew of seven escaped injury but the blimp's 400,000 cubic feet of helium gas escaped into the air. The gondola was comparatively unharmed in the 100-foot drop and naval officials said the gas bag could be repaired at moderate cost.

F. D. R. TO SIGN BIG FARM BILL DESPITE GARNER

Wallace Victory Expected Although Vice President Opposes Measure

SUBSIDIES ARE PROVIDED No Provision Arranged For Obtaining Fund Needed For Payments

WASHINGTON, May 17—Intimates of President Roosevelt said today he has indicated he will sign the $1,219,000,000 farm bill, with its huge subsidies for American farmers, if congress enacts it.

This decision, if carried out, will constitute a major victory for Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace in his long feud with Vice President Garner over farm relief.

The President was pictured as ready to sign the bill even though it fails to carry provisions for raising revenue to meet a $400,000,000 increase over budget estimates for agricultural relief.

KUHN'S CITIZENSHIP

Behind the State Department's move in holding up passports to Fritz Kuhn and other Nazi Bund leaders is a highly confidential investigation which if successful may result in putting a serious crimp in Nazi activities in this country.

Certain information is in the hands of super sleuth J. Edgar Hoover and the State Department which will probably result in the cancellation of Fritz Kuhn's status as a United States citizen.

One is a series of affidavits quoting Kuhn to the effect that he came to the United States for the express purpose of organizing the Bund, and that he obtained citizenship solely for this reason. MERRY-GO-ROUND

It is not unlikely that the sudden appointment of Admiral Leahy as Governor of Puerto Rico will be followed by a similar abrupt announcement regarding a new Governor for the Virgin Islands. . . . Attorney General Murphy and G-boss J. Edgar Hoover are vigorously opposing a confidential Treasury recommendation that wire tapping be used to obtain evidence against suspected tax dodgers. Murphy and Hoover take the position that wire tapping is a vicious and undemocratic practice and should not be countenanced by the Government. . . . Massachusetts' tall, handsome young Senator Cabot Lodge is an enthusiastic swing addict. He and his wife are among the Capitol's most talented dancers. Their favorite orchestra leader is swing-ace Benny Goodman. . . . In the current issue of the "Young Republican," Senator Bob Taft is inferentially criticized for voting for the government reorganization bill, which most of the other GOP Senators opposed. . . . New Dealers are reading with great gusto a speech by E. C. Love, outgoing President of the Oklahoma Bankers Association, lauding the Administration's spending policies and demanding that business men "stop putting scarecrows in the path of the earnest efforts of the Government to bring about recovery."

YOUTH, 17, KILLS MOTHER, HE SAYS BOTHERED HIM
CHICAGO, May 17—Because he claimed his sick mother nagged him, 17-year-old Robert Brickman fractured her skull with an iron bar, police charged today.

The mother, Mrs. Chris Brickman, 38, was taken to a hospital where it was said her condition was grave.

Young Brickman was quoted by police as saying he was washing dishes in the kitchen when his mother called to him to bring a glass of water.

"Wait till I get through," the youth was alleged to have retorted.

When Mrs. Brickman asked again for water, police said, the youth seized an iron bar, ran into the bedroom and slugged his mother several times over the head, after which he resumed his dish washing.

A few moments later the father came home and after a brief scuffle with his son called police.

BUSINESS LOANS
THE business outlook for the country is better now, says a midwestern banker, because the curve of small loan business is now definitely upward. He thinks this curve is an accurate indication of the state of all business.
"People don't borrow money unless they are confident they can pay it back," he adds. "They are now using their credit to re-establish their affairs, and that means more purchases and more business all along the line."
There was a time when people borrowed far more money than they are borrowing now, in the belief that they could pay it back. That was in the cheerful 1920's. Billions were lost through such optimism. But we have gone through a hard and perhaps profitable training school since. If people believe they can repay loans now, they are more likely to be right.
It is a cheerful and timely change of attitude, which might well be copied by larger business. There is danger of waiting so long for business recovery that hopes and capital shrinks. The way to resume is to resume.

TRAINING PUBLIC SERVANTS
ONE of the little extra jobs Mayor La Guardia has taken on is participation in a lecture course on "Government and Administration" to be given at New York University during the next school year. The Mayor has notified his commissioners that they, too, will have to take their turns on the "faculty". "No speeches are wanted," said the Mayor. "Merely educational data."
This action is a part of the Mayor's policy "of encouraging useful training for the public service." He believes that practical talks to students on the working of the city government by the men responsible for it will benefit the whole city by spreading knowledge of administrative problems and services.
The lecturers will receive no pay for their work. The fees charged for the course will be put into a special scholarship fund for city employees.
Perhaps it ought to be possible to accomplish such a purpose through the regular teaching channels; but even so, much good should follow personal contact between those who govern and those who intend to take up public service.

No, Nazism is not really irreligious. Hitler has merely substituted his Nazi ideology for the Kaiser's "Good Old German God."

World At A Glance —By— Charles P. Stewart

THAT LOWELL MELLETT will be one of the six "assistant presidents" whom the White House tenant is authorized to appoint, under the provisions of the government reorganization program recently approved by congress and now in process of being made effective, is accepted in Washington as a foregone conclusion. In fact, he may already have been appointed by the time these lines can be printed. If not, he will be shortly.
In suggesting the desirability of the creation of this half dozen of new jobs, President Roosevelt mentioned that an outstanding qualification for possible eligibles must be a "passion for anonymity."
Lowell has it all right. I don't know of another individual as intrinsically prominent as he is who camouflages his prominence quite so successfully. True, he breaks into "Who's Who" involuntarily. All newspapermen and higher-ups in the federal administration are acquainted with him and with his merits. Nevertheless, he's a wonder for his cleverness at avoiding capitalization of himself.
He can't be anonymous to me, though. I was a fellow reporter with him 25 or 30 years ago. We've sat, side by side, at the same board house table. We've worked together on a succession of newspapers.
STARTED AS A HOOSIER
Lowell began life as a little

Hoosier around 55 years ago. I first met him as a humble legman for the Indianapolis News. Being slightly his senior and occupying the relatively important job of telegraph editor, I patronized him somewhat, despite my appreciation of his underlying abilities. Little did I realize that he was destined to become an "assistant president."
Later we were associated on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. That's when we were co-boarders in the maternal home of the since celebrated Roy W. Howard, now head of the far-flung Scripps-Howard journalistic set-up. Would anybody believe it?—Roy was a copy reader on my Post-Dispatch telegraph desk.
From then I've worked, off and on, with Lowell until quite lately, on one newspaper or another. Boy!—is he anonymous, so far as I'm concerned?
Lowell always was a corking good politico-economic liberal. For quite a spell the newspapers he was working for were as liberal as he was. But with the incoming of the New Deal his newspaper connection turned a trifle more anti-New Dealerish than he could countenance. Most editors can readjust their views to suit their bosses' policies. He couldn't so he quit. Whether you call it good judgment or not, it was conscientious.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

THEORIES MUST GO
WASHINGTON—One of the President's recent secret callers was Ervin E. King, husky, quiet-spoken Master of the Washington State Grange, who did some very plain talking about Secretary Henry Wallace's farm policies.

The powerful West Coast leader told Roosevelt that unless there was a marked improvement in crop prices this year, the Administration was doomed as far as the farm vote was concerned.
"Out in my part of the country," King said, "the farmers are very much disgruntled with the way things are being run here. They don't hold anything against you personally, Mr. President, but they do feel that you are being very badly advised and misled by Mr. Wallace. The great mass of farmers disapprove of his theories and want you to step in and remedy them."
"Unless you do, a great many farmers are going to vote against the Administration next year, not because they are for the opposition but as a protest against Wallace."

What King did not tell the President was that before talking to him he had conferred with a number of New Dealers, including Hopkins and Ickes, and that without exception all had sympathized with King's contention that Wallace was getting the regime in Dutch with the crucial rural vote.
This inner circle hostility to Wallace is nothing new. The President's close advisers have been sour in Wallace's handling of the farm problem for some time and quietly have been trying to persuade Roosevelt to take a hand in the situation.
King is a leading advocate of the cost-of-production farm relief plan which came within a few votes of being approved by the Senate last session. Wallace is violently against the legislation and privately threatened to resign if it was passed by Congress, although years ago he advocated a similar measure in a book.

King recalled this book when he conferred with Wallace. Response to the reminder was the cryptic remark that King had a "queer mental quirk."

NO UMPIRE
Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold is one of the outstanding legal minds in the Government, but as a baseball umpire—well, that's different.
Impressed as umpire in a game between his Anti-Trust Division and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Arnold was the recipient of vituperative epithets before the first inning was over. "Robber! Burglar!" was hurled at the famous trust-buster.

After the Anti-Trusters had scored several runs, the FBI pitcher threw his glove to the ground and strode to the home plate.

"Mister," he stormed at Arnold, "I don't know who you are, but you weren't cut out for this business. Now you either (Continued on Page Three)

Rubbing Growth Hormone Into Skin Is New

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ANIMAL experimentation in the use of the ductless glands has often obtained results that can not be duplicated in human beings. Hence, there are a good many disappointments in the new science of endocrinology.
For instance, a physiologist takes a litter of white rats and gives half of them the growth hormone. In the published reports you can see photographs of the progress of the experiment. The rats who get the right hormones for them. In one particular instance—that of the sex hormones—the body gets rid of the injected hormone so fast that it doesn't have time to work. It seems we need some other substance to fix or stay the hormone in the body until it can operate.

A new approach has been made within recent months by rubbing the hormone into the skin rather than by giving it by mouth or hypodermic. This has been applied especially in breast development.

Moderate Success
Heretofore, while there are known to be indefinite hormones which affect the development of the breasts, the ordinary use of these by hypodermic injection has met with only moderate success. Very large doses are necessary and even then complete failure often results.

It occurred to one endocrinologist to try the effect of using an ointment saturated with the hormone rubbed into the skin of the breast. Surprising effects followed. Within ten days an evident growth and development occurred in one case.
It is possible that by using the skin as a medium of entry the ductless gland hormones may be fixed and better utilized in the body.

Like Fairy Tale
It all seems like a fairy tale, but a scientific fairy tale, and makes one think it possible to take short human beings and convert them to average size, or tone down the giants of the world to normal stature.
But up to the present it has not worked out that way, either because human beings are more resistant to variation, or because we haven't the

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, May 17
A particularly lively and eventful day is read from the ruling lunar aspects, with much progress and fulfilled ambitions possible. In fact, this day may call for very drastic and decisive action, which, however, should not be permitted to have inharmonious reactions on the personal life. Use tact and compromise should friction disturb the domestic or social relations. There are signs of intrigues or undercurrents of understandings in the sentimental affairs.
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly lively and expansive year, with much progress in the direction of ambitions and high objectives. Profitable and harmonious relations may be fostered by compromise, suble and friendliness rather than with ruthless measures. Intrigue or curious phases may prevail in the very personal contacts. This calls for discretion.
A child born on this day although versatile, active and progressive in its outer life, may have certain obscurities or subtleties beneath the surface. It may be well equipped for a professional or commercial career.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
PHIL PARRISH must have known Eleanor very well when he told her that she must make a choice of staying in Bermuda or returning with him. It is indicated by what happened later that had he thought for a moment she would not return with him, he would have made no ultimatum. Eleanor was the stronger, not necessarily the wiser, of the two. And they loved each other then.
Eleanor told him that she would return with him. And being Eleanor, she did it so that it was easy for both of them. She had a way of making the crises in their lives pass as easily as the childhood crises of their children. If there was not always a rainbow after their storms, there was sunshine. Warm sunshine. Eleanor had no use for half-way measures.
At their deck games on the boat that brought them home, her laughter was as carefree as Jessica's, her spontaneity as free of self-consciousness as her daughter's. They played on deck and swam in the pool on the boat, and after the children were asleep she and Phil danced in the salon and went out to lean over the deck rail and look at stars that were close to them.
The last night out, she put her hand in Phil's, saying: "Why so solemn?"
He said slowly: "Maybe you were right about staying in Bermuda." Her tone was impatient. "Oh, that! We finished all that."
"I don't mean what you think I do, Nell. We . . . we had something precious for a few weeks. I'm wondering when we'll have it again."
"Now you're being boyishly romantic."
"Anything wrong with that?"
"Yes. We're adults. We have a family growing up. We had the young years of our marriage and we are too intelligent to want to develop cases of arrested development. We want to go on to other things—together, of course."
"Thanks for the crumbs."
"Oh, Phil, you sound as if we'd met and fallen in love on shipboard and were going to part at the dock and never meet again."
"People can live together for a lifetime without meeting often," he said. "I suppose I am being boyish and morose, but when you leave something beautiful behind you, you are naturally afraid you'll never experience it again."
His words were almost prophetic.
Eleanor said: "I'd like to stay up here all night, but we dock early and I've got to pack."
"I'll help," he offered.
"No, stay up here until you're sleepy. I don't need you."
He was in such a mood that her last words seemed written across the stars he looked at after she had gone below.
Suddenly he wanted no more of the night. He went into the bar and ordered a nightcap for himself.
"It's a dreadfully long way out, isn't it?" she said in the cab that took them to Great Neck.
"But it's home," he said with a smile. The smile was intended to convey the idea to her that he was kidding about his sentiment. Eleanor wouldn't like sentimentality about a house.
The post had piled up during their absence. It was a very interesting post. It contained letters from agents who wanted to handle her material. It contained bids from magazines to see her stories. There were offers and invitations for her to speak before women's clubs.
She said: "Let's not renew the lease on this place. I really ought to move back to New York, Phil. It's terribly inconvenient for me to leave my work and rush into town to keep an engagement. And then that awful slavery of time tables. It isn't as if we had to move back to some dark, poky flat. We could really manage something quite comfortable."
"But we can't take Jessica out of school here. She's getting along beautifully."
She looked at her husband with an air of faint amusement. "Darling, you're so cute when you get paternal. Jessica has been out of school here since the first of November. Besides, I want her to go to a good private day school. I was thinking of Miss Maldstone's. It's only three thousand a year."
The Parrishes moved into an apartment in the East Fifties near the East river. Eleanor had said they needn't move into a dark, poky place. This new one was not. There was a drawing room with a balcony that ran around it from which other rooms were entered. Jessica's room, Sonny's room, Eleanor and Phil's room. On the first floor of the duplex there were two servants' rooms, the kitchen and dining room and Eleanor's work room.
The rent was six thousand a year.
It was easy for Eleanor to pay it after that first year. It was easy for her to pay the cook, the houseman, the maid, Sonny's nurse and her secretary.
Phil paid the food and liquor bills. And for the telephone and lights. The rest of his money was piling up in the bank. The "rest of his money" was not the money he earned at the paper—it was the matter of commissions Eleanor insisted he accept. True, he was her agent, her manager, her critic and her sage, but he would not give up his job to be any of these. They'd had a terrific scene over the matter of commissions and he had finally agreed to accept them. He did not tell her that he put the money in the bank in her name.
There was a great deal of money that flowed into her hands from the magazines for which she wrote serials. They were not very good serials, but they were popular and the public bought the magazines to read her stories. She never read them in print. She didn't have the time or the appetite for them.
She worked, during those years, like one possessed. She had to keep up with her contracts. Yet she managed her home and her family with the efficiency that had marked her every project.
With her business managed adroitly by her husband, she was free to devote herself to story telling.
It was a grind that told on her after the first three years and Phil was insistent upon another holiday for them. When she refused, he took matters into his own hands.
He bought a cottage in the country. It wasn't very large, but it was charming. A Cape Cod type of white house, filled with lovely antiques, with big hearths and a smel of spice about it. He showed it to her proudly.
"You can work here as well as in town," he told her. "And I will keep the garden blooming for you. See what I have here."
He showed her a row of brave little hyacinths, first floral harbingers of spring, gay and bright and heady with perfume.
"Hyacinths," she murmured. "Remember the day you brought a pot of them to me before we were married?"
"I haven't much to give you, Nell, but you'll have hyacinths every spring of our lives."
She was to remember that.

'Mothers In History'
Discussed At D. A. R.

Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker
On Program For Meeting

Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker of Williamsport presented an interesting paper before the members of Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Tuesday at the meeting in the home of Mrs. James Adams, Northridge Road. Using for her subject, "Famous Mothers in History", she opened her talk with a quotation from Kate Douglas Wiggin, "Most of all the beautiful things in life come by two's and three's, by dozens and hundreds. Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, but only one mother in the whole wide world". This was followed with a second from Alice Curtis Chandler, "Choosing a few mothers from the millions that have blessed the children of men is like choosing a dozen roses from a thousand beautiful garden."

Mrs. Hunsicker then discussed the lives of noted mothers choosing those who influenced their noted sons in their life work, mothers of musicians, scientists, presidents, kings, and poets.

Included in this interesting list were Elizabeth Goethe, the mother of William Shakespeare, Queen Victoria, Mary Ball Washington, Abigail Smith Adams, Nancy and Sarah Johnson Lincoln, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Julia Ward Howe, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Nancy Elliott Edison and the mother of Sir James Barrie.

Roses Repay Proper Planting

Roses will repay proper planting with vigorous growth and profusion of blooms. Fall planting is usually recommended for rose planting, but roses properly planted in the Spring also will do well. Since in most sections of the country the Spring season has been backward, roses still can be planted with success if care is taken.

The Garden-Graph shows how to spread the roots properly when planting a rose bush. Many people make the mistake of digging too small a hole and then crowding the roots into it. The hole should be large enough to accommodate the roots easily without crowding them, or permitting them to overlap. Also make sure that the tips of the roots point slightly downward.

After the roots of the rose bush have been properly spread in the hole cover them with a loose, friable soil that can be tramped down firmly. Fill with water the depression left by tramping. After the water has seeped down to the roots add more soil until the hole is filled to the level of the ground. Leave the top layer of soil fairly loose.

Roses will repay proper planting with vigorous growth and profusion of blooms. Fall planting is usually recommended for rose planting, but roses properly planted in the Spring also will do well. Since in most sections of the country the Spring season has been backward, roses still can be planted with success if care is taken.

The Garden-Graph shows how to spread the roots properly when planting a rose bush. Many people make the mistake of digging too small a hole and then crowding the roots into it. The hole should be large enough to accommodate the roots easily without crowding them, or permitting them to overlap. Also make sure that the tips of the roots point slightly downward.

After the roots of the rose bush have been properly spread in the hole cover them with a loose, friable soil that can be tramped down firmly. Fill with water the depression left by stepping. After the water has seeped down to the roots add more soil until the hole is filled to the level of the ground. Leave the top layer of soil fairly loose.

ryn Huffer and daughter enjoyed the day.

Monarch A. C. Loses Fast Contest In City League

Three big runs that crossed the plate in the final inning, the fifth, spelled victory for the Eshelmen Feeds and defeat for the Monarch
A. C. team in the city softball loop.
Tuesday evening. The final score was 8-6 with the Feeds coming from behind by scoring four runs, which added to one in the first,

man crew chalked in the opening session. The Feeds tallied one in the third, two in the fourth, and clinched the game with three counters in the last session.

Brannon and Purcell pitched for the winners, with Chuck Hill tossing for the losers. Wellington had a walk, single and double to lead the Eshelman hit parade.

Wednesday's game will be between the Wallace-Glitt and Coop-

Dizzy's Work In Relief Role Pleases Chicagoans

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, May 17—By all odds the most absorbing topic in baseball today is the return of Dizzy Dean and his ailing $185,000 arm to the firing line.
For a long time while Ol' Diz moped morosely in the shadow of the dug-out the feeling grew that he would never be worth a plugged nickel to the Cubs.
Rumor had it that the old boy couldn't break a pane of glass with his fast ball. Some said he had given up on himself. A few even intimated he might never win another game.
But Ol' Diz fooled everybody as he so often fooled the hitters in better and happier days.
Ol' Diz made his debut in a relief role yesterday and proceeded to show the Dodgers and everybody else a flash of the old Dean. For five innings he did not allow a run. He gave only three hits. He walked nobody.
May Be Potent
But best of all, he showed on occasion that he could still fog that high hard one past the hitters. If his arm shows no ill effects from that performance, he will have a large say in where the pennant flies this year, because even a Dean only 75 percent of his former self could still add 25 percent to the pitching strength of the Cubs.
A pitching staff composed of Dean, Lee and Bryant all going at top speed would be nothing for the other clubs to laugh about.
Unfortunately for the Cubs, the Dodgers already had the game in the bag before Ol' Diz shuffled out to make his debut. By that time Camilli had hit his sixth homer, the Dodgers had scored 12 times, and with Wyatt giving only four hits, they had no trouble winning, 12-2.
Lefty Grissom also made something of a comeback yesterday. The Reds' southpaw went the route for the first time this season to beat the Bees, 4-1, and he, too, gave evidence that he will be better and stronger when he hits warm weather.

The Pirates, steadily improving, stopped the Phils, 8-5, and the rampant Cardinals came from behind to take the Giants, 7-6. The Cardinals' power boys—Medwick, Mize and Pepper Martin—accounted for six of the Cardinal runs with homers.
And speaking of power, it's a pleasure to watch those Yanks uncover their siege guns. They don't hit as often as some other clubs but they surely hit farther.
They made only four hits in six innings off young Johnny Kramer of the Browns but even so they had him down 4-2 when he left the game, and eventually won, 7-5.
Homers Do Trick
Six of those seven Yankee runs were attributable to homers by Gordon, Selkirk and Dahlgren. The Yanks had to be good to stay on top for the Red Sox, even without Jimmy Foxx who is hospitalized for a few days with sinus trouble, went wild against the White Sox, piling up 19 hits for an 18-4 decision. Woody Rich, the Red Sox rookie, again uncovered another neat pitching performance as he moved along smoothly to a six-hit victory.
The Tigers knocked off the Senators, 6-2, and little Tommy Bridges, who is 20 percent arm and 80 percent heart and head, again proved the meal ticket for the Detroit entry.
A crowd of 15,109 fans jammed into the park at Philadelphia to watch the American League's first night baseball game which went 10 innings before the Cleveland Indians defeated the Athletics 8 to 3.
The Los Angeles fire department takes samples of the smoke of every fire to determine whether or not the blaze is of incendiary origin.

ELKS APPOINT COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS PARK

Civic Organizations Arrange Meeting To Consider Playground

FRANK LYNCH CHAIRMAN

Six B. P. O. E. Members To Serve; C. Of C., Rotary, Kiwanis To Join

A movement to obtain a playground for Circleville children gained momentum Tuesday evening when a committee of six members of the Circleville lodge of Elks was named to work with the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs in an effort to get the "ball rolling."

Named by Paul D. Miller, exalted ruler, the committee of Elks includes Frank A. Lynch, chairman; Ben H. Gordon, L. M. Mader, Harry L. Bartholomew, W. E. Wallace, and Dan McClain. James I. Smith, Jr., is the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, Carl Hunter has been designated by the Rotary Club to participate, and Elmer Stetson, chairman of the Kiwanis Club's committee for underprivileged children, will take part for that organization.

Need Stressed

The playground need was stressed by Mr. Lynch in an address to the lodge, the organization being reminded that similar projects are being encouraged by the Grand Lodge. After a motion by A. J. Lyle, a trustee and past exalted ruler of the lodge, it was decided unanimously to appoint a committee to meet with representatives of other organizations to study the recreation ground problem.

Mr. Lynch stressed the fact that practically every city in Ohio the size of Circleville and countless more with smaller populations have suitable playgrounds. "Circleville has none," he declared, "and it is about time that we do something about it."

A committee meeting will be held early next week. Mr. Lynch indicated, during which the problem will be discussed and ways and means of dealing with it will be considered.

EIGHT STUDENTS TO WIN HONORS FOR HIGH GRADE

Five Circleville high school pupils and three from Pickaway county school are eligible to receive state certificates, Saturday, for high ranks in the district-state scholarship tests.

Presentation of the awards will be made Saturday at a meeting to begin at 9:45 a. m. in the Memorial Hall at Columbus.

Eleanor Brown and Frank E. Barnhill, of Circleville high school, will receive certificates for high grades in the test on first year bookkeeping. Miss Brown ranked fifth in the state. Mr. Barnhill receives honorable mention. Mary Adelle Snider was second highest in the state in second year Latin. Others of Circleville high school who received honorable mention are Lloyd Jones, world history, and Dorothy Cook, ninth year English.

The Pickaway county school pupils who received honorable mention are Richard Penn, Pickaway township, chemistry; Gertrude F. Peters, Ashville, algebra, and Charlotte Schaal, of Salt Creek township, first year Latin.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

How a courageous government agent saves the son and daughter of a United States senator from being involved in a nefarious scheme to smuggle arms and munitions to a foreign nation, is dramatically depicted in the RKO

Radio drama, "Border G-Man," starring George O'Brien, opening Wednesday at the Circle theatre.

The story revolves around the activities of a large smuggling ring violating the neutrality laws by secretly exporting men, horses and arms to a warring country from a point on the gulf coast of Texas.

AT THE GRAND

That favorite axiom of the French police, "cherchez la femme," acquires a vital significance in "Star of Midnight," mystery romance starring William Powell and Ginger Rogers, in their first joint screen vehicle.

It's necessary to "find the woman" to solve the mystery of who killed Tommy Tennant, newspaper columnist. And finding Alice Markham, alias Mary Smith, is "just like looking for a needle in a haystack." First, she's seen vanishing in a taxicab. Then she disappears from a theatre stage.

Powell and the Titan tressed Ginger, the screen's most romantic sleuthing combination, take up the trail, and a whole flock of interesting adventures befall them. "Star of Midnight," showing Thursday, for one day only at the Grand theatre, is based on the Redbook Magazine serial of the same name by the late Arthur Somers.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Claudette Colbert, as an American fortune hunter stalking her prey in international society, Don Ameche, as a taxi-driver who unexpectedly changes her grandiose plans, and Francis Lederer, as a handsome and gold-dripping Paris playboy—these are the romantic leads in "Midnight," Paramount's gay new comedy, which will be on view at the Cliftona theatre on Sunday next.

Miss Colbert, who is the screen's chief expert in the field of sophisticated and brittle comedy, has a role tailored especially for her measurements. She plays "Eve Peabody," a third-rate dancer with first-rate ambitions, who in one dazzling evening meets and falls in love with a hard-boiled taxi-driver, crashes an exclusive party with a pawn ticket as her admission card, sweeps the town's A-1 playboy off his feet and turns into a "countess" to get along better in a snobbish world!

MRS. KATHERINE KENNEDY DIES; RITES FRIDAY AT 9

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

The Editor Circleville Herald Circleville, Ohio

Dear Sir:

In the House of Representatives this last week there was a terrific battle between those forces who are opposed to lowering the 65 percent vote requirement for either bond issues or special levies and those who favored it and under the cry of distress and emergency were willing to protect themselves under their slogan of "no new taxes" while setting up the machinery to permit people to impose new taxes on the helpless minority that owns real estate.

We (the Ohio Farm Bureau) were on the side of those defending the 65 percent vote as one of our basic laws protecting us against debts, unwise spending and further inequity in taxation. The administration aligned itself with the opposition. Seldom have we seen "the heat" turned on to the extent that it was in the House battle over this issue. Your representative, the Honorable William D. Radcliff, was one of twelve Republicans that in the face of all of this pressure showed stamina enough to not only vote his own convictions but to be loyal to his constituency. We need more men like that in public life and trust that you will give proper recognition to Mr. Radcliff.

Cordially Yours, Edwin J. Bath, Legislative Representative

MOATS DIVORCE

Suit for divorce, charging neglect of duty and cruelty, was filed in Common Pleas court Tuesday by Louise Moats against Arnold Moats, E. Ohio street. Mrs. Moats asks that her maiden name of Steele be restored and she be granted alimony. An order was issued restraining the defendant from disposing of any real estate while the action is pending. They were married March 12, 1927 in Akron, the petition says. They have no children.

ELKS APPOINT COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS PARK

Civic Organizations Arrange Meeting To Consider Playground

FRANK LYNCH CHAIRMAN

Six B. P. O. E. Members To Serve; C. Of C., Rotary, Kiwanis To Join

A movement to obtain a playground for Circleville children gained momentum Tuesday evening when a committee of six members of the Circleville lodge of Elks was named to work with the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs in an effort to get the "ball rolling."

Named by Paul D. Miller, exalted ruler, the committee of Elks includes Frank A. Lynch, chairman; Ben H. Gordon, L. M. Mader, Harry L. Bartholomew, W. E. Wallace, and Dan McClain. James I. Smith, Jr., is the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, Carl Hunter has been designated by the Rotary Club to participate, and Elmer Stebelton, chairman of the Kiwanis Club's committee for underprivileged children, will take part for that organization.

Need Stressed

The playground need was stressed by Mr. Lynch in an address to the lodge, the organization being reminded that similar projects are being encouraged by the Grand Lodge. After a motion by A. J. Lyle, a trustee and past exalted ruler of the lodge, it was decided unanimously to appoint a committee to meet with representatives of other organizations to study the recreation ground problem.

Mr. Lynch stressed the fact that practically every city in Ohio the size of Circleville and countless more with smaller populations have suitable playgrounds. "Circleville has none," he declared, "and it is about time that we do something about it."

A committee meeting will be held early next week, Mr. Lynch indicated, during which the problem will be discussed and ways and means of dealing with it will be considered.

EIGHT STUDENTS TO WIN HONORS FOR HIGH GRADE

Five Circleville high school pupils and three from Pickaway county school are eligible to receive state certificates, Saturday, for high ranks in the district-state scholarship tests.

Presentation of the awards will be made Saturday at a meeting to begin at 9:45 a. m. in the Memorial Hall at Columbus.

Eleanor Brown and Frank E. Barnhill, of Circleville high school, will receive certificates for high grades in the test on first year bookkeeping. Miss Brown ranked fifth in the state. Mr. Barnhill receives honorable mention. Mary Adelle Snider was second highest in the state in second year Latin. Others of Circleville high school who received honorable mention are Lloyd Jones, world history, and Dorothy Cook, ninth year English.

The Pickaway county school pupils who received honorable mention are Richard Penn, Pickaway township, chemistry; Gertrude F. Peters, Ashville, algebra, and Charlotte Schaal, of Salt Creek township, first year Latin.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

How a courageous government agent saves the son and daughter of a United States senator from being involved in a nefarious scheme to smuggle arms and munitions to a foreign nation, is dramatically depicted in the RKO

Radio drama, "Border G-Man," starring George O'Brien, opening Wednesday at the Circle theatre.

The story revolves around the activities of a large smuggling ring violating the neutrality laws by secretly exporting men, horses and arms to a warring country from a point on the gulf coast of Texas.

AT THE GRAND

That favorite axiom of the French police, "cherchez la femme," acquires a vital significance in "Star of Midnight," mystery romance starring William Powell and Ginger Rogers, in their first joint screen vehicle.

It's necessary to "find the woman" to solve the mystery of who killed Tommy Tennant, newspaper columnist. And finding Alice Markham, alias Mary Smith, is "just like looking for a needle in a haystack." First, she's seen vanishing in a taxicab. Then she disappears from a theatre stage.

Powell and the Titan tressed Ginger, the screen's most romantic sleuthing combination, take up the trail, and a whole flock of interesting adventures befall them.

"Star of Midnight," showing Thursday, for one day only at the Grand theatre, is based on the Redbook Magazine serial of the same name by the late Arthur Somers.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Claudette Colbert, as an American fortune hunter stalking her prey in international society, Don Ameche, as a taxi-driver who unexpectedly changes her grandiose plans, and Francis Lederer, as a handsome and gold-dripping Paris playboy—these are the romantic leads in "Midnight," Paramount's gay new comedy, which will be on view at the Cliftona theatre on Sunday next.

Miss Colbert, who is the screen's chief expert in the field of sophisticated and brittle comedy, has a role tailored especially for her measurements. She plays "Eve Peabody," a third-rate dancer with first-rate ambitions, who in one dazzling evening meets and falls in love with a hard-boiled taxi-driver, crashes an exclusive party with a pawn ticket as her admission card, sweeps the town's A-1 playboy off his feet and turns into a "countess" to get along better in a snobbish world!

MRS. KATHERINE KENNEDY DIES; RITES FRIDAY AT 9

Mrs. Katherine Kennedy, 73, widow of Patrick Kennedy, died Wednesday at 2:15 a. m. at her home, S. Court street. Mrs. Kennedy suffered a broken hip seven years ago, complications from that injury causing her death.

The funeral will be Friday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's church, the Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

Mrs. Kennedy was a daughter of Thomas and Anna Lewis. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ben Bolender, of Columbus, and Miss Ella Lewis, of S. Court street, and a stepson, James Kennedy, of Columbus. Her husband died about 30 years ago.

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

The Editor Circleville Herald Circleville, Ohio Dear Sir:

In the House of Representatives this last week there was a terrific battle between those forces who are opposed to lowering the 65 percent vote requirement for either bond issues or special levies and those who favored it and under the cry of distress and emergency were willing to protect themselves under their slogan of "no new taxes" while setting up the machinery to permit people to impose new taxes on the helpless minority that owns real estate.

We (the Ohio Farm Bureau) were on the side of those defending the 65 percent vote as one of our basic laws protecting us against debts, unwise spending and further inequity in taxation. The administration aligned itself with the opposition. Seldom have we seen "the heat" turned on to the extent that it was in the House battle over this issue. Your representative, the Honorable William D. Radcliff, was one of twelve Republicans that in the face of all of this pressure showed stamina enough to not only vote his own convictions but to be loyal to his constituency. We need more men like that in public life and trust that you will give proper recognition to Mr. Radcliff.

Cordially Yours, Edwin J. Bath, Legislative Representative

MOATS DIVORCE

Suit for divorce, charging neglect of duty and cruelty, was filed in Common Pleas court Tuesday by Louise Moats against Arnold Moats, E. Ohio street. Mrs. Moats asks that her maiden name of Steele be restored and she be granted alimony. An order was issued restraining the defendant from disposing of any real estate while the action is pending. They were married March 12, 1927 in Akron, the petition says. They have no children.
